

Discover DELHI, AGRA AND JAIPUR

Delhi, Agra, and Jaipur—offers a rich passage through centuries of royal heritage and evolving empires. Delhi, the heart of many dynasties, rose to prominence under the Delhi Sultanate from 1206 to 1526, later giving rise to the grandeur of the Mughal Empire. The Mughals shifted their capital to Agra, where their culture, architecture, and rule flourished from the 16th to the 19th century. In contrast, Jaipur, founded in the 18th century, reflects the valor of the Rajputana legacy, rooted in traditions dating back to the 7th century. Today, these historical cities are linked not only by their royal pasts but also by the seamless connectivity of modern transport like the Delhi Metro, offering travelers a smooth blend of ancient glory and contemporary comfort.
